

Nicole Anderson

Nicole A. Anderson's oftentimes quiet strength is interwoven with her innate passion to help others and has empowered her to accomplish and exceed personal and professional goals.

In 2018, she made the challenging decision to share her personal life story with the world. In her first book, Don't Survive: Rise up, Shine Bright & Soar, Ms. Anderson coaches her readers on the importance of rising above their circumstances.

She fulfills her God-given and directed purpose by serving those who struggle with life-altering challenges. As CEO of Rise & Shine, she advises those who are ready to thrive, in spite of their misfortunes.

Professionally, Nicole uses her education (BA Degree in Psychology from State University of New York at Albany) and experience to ensure that people understand the implications of their health, life, and legal benefits. Currently, VP of Operations for a major Insurance Consulting Company, she has over 25 years of insurance and training experience.

Ms. Anderson was born in upstate New York and has resided in Metro Atlanta for over 20 years. She is the proud mother of Nyla, Jelani, and Jabari Anderson.

Nicole joined Grace Community Christian Church in 2006. She serves in the following ministries: choir, finance and is director of membership services. Nicole successfully completed the following GCCC training courses: Discipleship, Joshua Institute of Leadership, and Christian Education. She has led 'Power or 12', 'Discipleship', and 'Life builder's' classes.
